Macao People's Resistance War Won the Ministry of Education's 8th Award for Outstanding Scientific Research Achievements of Higher Education Institutions

In the 8th Award for Outstanding Scientific Research Achievements of Higher Education Institutions (The Humanities and Social Sciences) organised by the Ministry of Education, the book Macao People's Resistance War, published by the Centre of Sino-Western Cultural Studies of MPI, won in the category of "Popular Reading". It was the first time for a Macao higher education institution to win in this category of the national award. Among more than 1,500 award-winning achievements nationwide, there were only 20 winners for the "Popular Reading" category, which shows that the research level of MPI has been recognised by academia and national authorities. Macao People's Resistance War was edited by Lam Fat lam, Director of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, and was jointly compiled by the academic staff of the Centre of Sino-Western Cultural Studies including Professor Jiang Chun, Professor Wang Xi, and Lecturer Wan Hok Kun. It was well received by a wide audience and attracted attention from local media such as the Macao Daily News, Lotus Satellite TV and MASTV, with the book being represented in a variety of platforms including newspaper columns, historical documentary, TV specials, and textbook supplement readings, attracting great attention from society. The book employs empirical historical evidence to rewrite the history of the Resistance War of Macao people, and promotes it to the public, especially young people, in a concise and approachable fashion, so that the audience has changed their understanding of the period and that the homeland identification of Macao people has been further strengthened.
